...ity has remained Democratic despite Nixon's efforts to make it bipartisan, ...feelings tend to be exaggerated. The fraternity of ex-White House aides believes that it would be impossible for a President to remain as ignorant of events as the White House indicates. "You can't lie to a President," said one former White House aide. "I can't imagine any man working with the President who would keep such facts from him ... or another."

"I never entered the Oval Office without being awed," insisted one veteran of two Administrations. "You can't create that atmosphere for much of its aura
